Family support services are helping families sooner, supporting them to provide a safe family environment for children to grow and thrive, reducing the need for child protection services.

Child Safety focusses on engaging with families earlier and where appropriate, keeping children and young people safely at home.

In care, children and young people will have the supports they need to enjoy their childhood, feel safe and cared for, and develop into adulthood.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children, young people and families will have access to quality, culturally responsive and culturally safe services and care.
